

La Finca Futbol Club Program Description

updated for 2023

La Finca Futbol Club is the competitive, team-based side of our futbol training program. Despite the focus on team play, the Club is also designed to support individual player development first. Players looking to develop their competency and love for the game, as well a future of highest-level competitive play starting in the U11/U12 divisions, are best served by our Club.

LFFC offers boys U8, U9 and U10 divisions, exclusively (girls and others welcome). We then create appropriately-leveled pathways to partner clubs starting in U11.

For the fall 2023 season, we are holding tryouts on May 31st and late June (exact date TBD) for players with birth years 2013, 2014, 2015 and 2016 (La Finca currently operates a 2013 team playing in NYCS/EDP Division 2 and will continue this program this fall.)

La Finca team registration is per year

The Unique Design of La Finca Futbol Club, Why only to U10?

LFFC is an ambitious early youth development program for players hoping to play for MLS Next or ECNL clubs, starting in the U13 division. Our pathway involves strategic partnerships with premier clubs in our area, and part of our commitment to our families is to continue to grow this network¹. All LF Club players and their families will understand what it takes to qualify for a premier league team and the process of application. Qualified players will be afforded exclusive opportunities for evaluation by staff from these clubs.

Our partners include clubs that are large enough to field at least 2 teams per division, ensuring continued playing opportunities for all players in LFFC.

¹ This network currently includes: Quickstrike, Pathfinders FC, FC Westchester, World Class FC, Cedar Stars, NY Soccer Club, NYCFC and the Red Bulls.

Our Approach to Early Youth Training

We believe there are three key qualities to develop in players under 12 years old: technique, tactical awareness and game understanding, in that order. We focus almost exclusively on technique up until the U10 division, when we introduce modest tactics and game understanding. Our training and game coaching consistently support these aims. (To learn more about our soccer philosophy check out my free "Jed Tucker Substack" newsletter.)

The DNA of La Finca Futbol Club

1. Coaching style. Our training staff for all teams includes licensed, professional trainers and pre-professional trainers/players learning our club philosophy. All coaches subscribe to a style of play emphasizing technique, speed of play, and an attacking mindset
2. Training structure. Our club program will (1) favor training small-sided, especially in the younger divisions U8 & U9, (2) offer skill-based, rather than age-based, training opportunities, and (3) all players can be invited to different teams throughout a season according to what is best for their individual growth;
3. Roster size. As a competitive program, playing time in games is not guaranteed; rather, it will depend on a combination of player commitment, effort throughout the week and current level. Nonetheless, we maintain purposefully small rosters in order to maximize playing time for everyone;
4. League selection. Every team in our program will compete in the New York Club Soccer league (the Northeast division of EDP), or equivalent. This league allows for dual-rostering, making it possible to tailor team-participation to support individual growth.

Family Commitment

Our Club program is designed for players dedicated to building a future with soccer. We understand that our players have other commitments, but they are expected to prioritize weekly training, league games and tournaments in the event of a conflict. Please consider this commitment when choosing to register with a La Finca team.

We also expect you to share our understanding that development is a share responsibility. Team training develops tactical awareness and game understanding; players are primarily responsible for their skill development. As such, we encourage all players to self-train for a minimum of 2 hrs a week. Ask us for suggestions about how to build an effective self-training program.

FAQ

Where do you train and play? – TBD

Our indoor and outdoor training facilities are located in Highland, NY. Exact locations TBD. Our home field is Rosemary Nardone Sports Complex, Highland NY. Our backup home field is Marbletown Town Park in Kingston, NY.

Is small-sided training sufficient for competitive training?

We think so. Because our focus is young player development, 2 - 10 years olds, and we believe technical excellence is the foundation of all high level players, small-sided training is the optimal training tool. It's not so much a question of, Can you do everything with small-sided play?, as What's the best way to develop highly technical players? We are constantly experimenting and looking to refine our answer to this question.

There's also a lot more to small-sided training than just playing in tight spaces, with fewer players. It's true these qualities mean more touches on the ball. The play is also much quicker in small spaces where the playing surface can be perfectly flat. The balls moves more quickly and therefore, players have to make decisions far more quickly. In short, we have found that this is the best structure for our unique training program.
